Mayor Chadwick Explains.

The Mayor called at the TRIBUNE office last Friday and informed us, that, in so far as the authority of the city administration goes, city marshal Shackelford is not required to be on duty both day and night as stated in the TRIBUNE last week. The mayor does not think it is necessary to have the marshal on duty during the day time. The marshal is required by the city administration to work nights only. In the day time the city is so peaceful and the citizens so law abiding that there is no need of a police officer.

Mr. Chadwick has been mayor of the city for the greater portion of the past twenty-five years and attributes the fact to his policy of rigid economy. He ought to know what the people want and probably does know. The TRIBUNE thought, and does think, Montgomery should have a police officer on duty both day and night.

The Mayor said that in the matter of lighting perhaps a better service in the business portion of the city would be advisable, but that no more lights could be afforded at present. Perhaps that's so. Montgomery's citizens may be too poor to pay enough taxes to properly light the city but we hardly think it possible.

Elopers Return Home

Miss Kate Carlyle, daughter of the Postmaster at Auxvasse, Mo., and F. C. Holland a young farmer of Callaway County were secretly married Sunday and came here in an automobile Sunday evening and staid all night at Hotel Bob Caruthers. The young woman's father sent her a message that all would be forgiven if they would return home, and they left for Auxvasse on the noon train.

Meek Little Major

The great State of Missouri is on its knees begging the railroads to be good and not increase passenger rates. In an appeal to the railroads by Attorney-General Major published in Wednesday's St. Louis Republic is the following:

"In the interest of the people, who have made your roads what they are and on whom you must rely in the future and whose good will is one of your most valuable assets, I ask that you leave your passenger rates at 2 cents.

This has been and will continue to be my only position in the matter. The State has no compromise to offer and none to accept, but chooses to submit its cause to the final decree of the Supreme Court of the United States, in which forum the principles will be settled."

How different this attitude from that of Hadley, when he was Attorney-General of the State! Then it was the railroads that were on their knees, not the State of Missouri.

Mild, meek-mannered Major, on his knees with his hands above his heads pleads: Please Mr. Railroads, be good, I can't make you be good, but then just out of sympathy for the dear people you should not increase the rates. To do so would be an injustice and would hurt their feelings. Please let the rates stay at 2 cents a mile until the Supreme Court of the United States settles the matter.

You Can Help

I am a contestant in the St. Louis Star Voting Contest and desire to win the trip to the Yukon-Alaskan Pacific Exposition to be held at Seattle, Washington this summer. You can help me by sending me the coupon, (good for thirty votes) published each week in the TRIBUNE and coupons printed in the Daily and Sunday Star. Those residing in the city may hand them to me at the office. Those living in the country may hand them to the TRIBUNE correspondents in their neighborhood. Your assistance in the contest will be highly appreciated.

City Editor.

The meetings at the Baptist church continue with a healthful growing interest. Christian people attending have been greatly strengthened and renewed. And this primarily is the true meaning of a revival.

JOHN W. KETNER, Pastor.

The public is always given a warm welcome at the Methodist church. We invite the public to meet with us next Sunday in the morning and evening services to wait upon God, to hear his word proclaimed, not only for the good you may receive, but for your example before the world. Good singing, warm welcome. Come with us and we will try to help you heavenward.

A number of useful presents were left in honor of the occasion and after a pleasant evening the guests departed wishing Charles many happy birthdays.
